

Feedback and Self Reflection

Screen Recording

Activity

In conjunction with the built-in Markup function, students can add their voice to explain their work via the Screen Recording function.

Examples: Teachers can provide audio feedback while marking students work. Students are able to self reflect on their written work or read the text out-aloud as a form of self assessment.

Objectives

- Students can review and revise drafts to improve focus and clarity in expression of meaning through self-reflection, teacher/peer conferencing.
- Students can proof read and edit drafts by correcting language features for grammatical accuracy and clarity of meaning.
- Students can recount relevant experiences which they has learnt from (CIT2).

Extensions

- Teachers can provide images as stimulus material for students to revise on their picture discussion.
- Students can work on their mind map first – take an image (markup to add more information if needed), then to record their work.
